President of LaFollette Association Says Young Bob Offers Nothing

Milwaukee—(AP)—In a statement in which he declares that the candidacy of Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., for the United States senate offers "little if anything in the way of statesmanship or leadership," Edwin J. Gross, for many years a supporter of the late Senator LaFollette and a leader of the faction of progressives opposed to the present governor, John J. Blaine, Monday announced he would throw his support in the ensuing senatorial primary campaign to Francis E. McGovern, Milwaukee, Republican.

Mr. Gross is president of the LaFollette Progressive State association. He was a supporter of the late senator in the Republican national conventions of 1916 and 1920, when the senator was a candidate before the convention for the presidential nomination. It is asserted in the statement of Mr. Gross that young LaFollette failed to seek the counsel and advice of veteran progressives "who fought with his father during the trying years" and the statement adds that his conduct helps to perpetuate the "Madison ring" at the expense of "representative government."

The statement says in part: "Without any public record behind him, with absolutely nothing on which the people can form a reasonably accurate opinion as to his qualifications, Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., presents himself as a candidate for the United States senate. I am sure that if he were not the son of Senator LaFollette, he would not be a candidate. My political training under the greatest constructive leader this nation has ever seen has taught me that a surrender to sentiment is tantamount to a surrender of principle."

As chairman of the Republican state central committee, young LaFollette "left rather a colorless record," the Gross statement adds. In coming back to Wisconsin and announcing himself as a candidate Mr. Gross avers that Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., showed "very poor statesmanship and impossible leadership."

CAILLAUX IN BRITAIN
TO TALK DEBT TERMS

London—(AP)—Joseph Caillaux, the French Minister of finance, was here Monday for conversations with Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, regarding the terms for the settlement of France's debt of 623,000,000 pounds. The talks will not finally settle the question, for Caillaux will make a report to his government before any decision is taken.

Recent statements in the French press have created the opinion here that France is not preparing to consider the payment of anything like 20,000,000 pounds yearly which Great Britain mentioned as being an acceptable sum when the French financial experts were here recently and the expectation is that M. Caillaux's offer will not exceed 10,000,000 pounds annually.

Newspaper stress is laid on Great Britain's having canceled more than 50 per cent of her allied debts, requiring only enough to enable her to cover her own indebtedness to the United States.

ACCIDENTS KILL 26
IN U-S. OVER WEEKEND

Chicago—(AP)—Twenty-six persons were killed and many others were injured throughout the country in weekend accidents ranging from automobile collisions to flying mishaps. Seven automobilists were killed, five persons were drowned, five succumbed to violence, while six others were fatally hurt in train, storm, wire and launch accidents.

The automobile toll for the entire week in nine middle western states was 87. Ohio led with 26, with fatalities in other states as follows: Illinois 18, Indiana 14, Missouri 8, Texas 6, Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma 4 each, and Minnesota 3.

Igloo Houny is a trading station on Murchison Sound, about 100 miles south of Etah.

NO PROGRESSIVE HEAD ON SPECIAL BALLOTS

Madison—(AP)—Attorney General Ekern Monday ruled that "LaFollette-Wheeler Progressivism" could not be used as the title of a ticket on the ballots in the special senatorial primary Sept. 15. Arthur R. Barry of Milwaukee, had announced that he would be a candidate for the unexpired term of the late Senator LaFollette under the "progressivism" designation.

The attorney general advised Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman that there is no such political party in Wisconsin and that he is not authorized to add a separate ticket on the primary ballot.

Simple Funeral Held
For Victor F. Lawson
In His Boyhood Church

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—Utter simplicity marked the funeral services and burial Monday of Victor Fremont Lawson, for 50 years publisher of the Chicago Daily News and world figure in journalism.

Notables of the nation, city and the newspaper world attended the funeral in the new England Congregational church of which Mr. Lawson was a member nearly half a century, but, in keeping with his wish left the final rites to be attended by his few surviving relatives and close friends.

Speaking from an altar nearly hidden in a profusion of floral offerings the Rev. Dr. Ozora Stearns Davis, president of the Chicago theological seminary, paid a last tribute to his friend of 15 years, Victor F. Lawson, "the lover and defender of truth" and "a Christian gentleman."

It was his wish that his funeral service and burial be shorn of all ostentation and display. So it was that they were planned. Despite his demands for simplicity, a great company of mourners, many nationally known in the field of journalism, in which, as proprietor and editor of the Chicago Daily News and co-founder of the Associated Press, Mr. Lawson was a commanding figure for 50 years, were here for the funeral service at 11 o'clock Monday morning in the little new England Congregational church, preceding burial at Grace-land cemetery.

"CHURCH WAS MILESTONE" It was entirely fitting that all that remained mortal of Victor Lawson should be borne to his last resting place for the church's last site. It was a milestone that ever recurred in his life.

There it was, in the quiet, old-fashioned church in the days of his youth he lent his voice to the singing from the steep choir loft. There he became acquainted with Miss Jessie Bradley nearly half a century ago. There they were married, and there 34 years after Mr. Lawson knelt for comfort when Mrs. Lawson died.

He was trustee of the church nine two years terms, and at his death, had been president of the board many years. Rarely did he miss a service.

DAWES AT FUNERAL Of the thousands of messages of condolence and tribute, which have streamed into the offices of the Daily News since Mr. Lawson's death, one of the most touching was from Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, vice president of the United States, who signified his intention to attend the final services for his long time friend Monday.

Melville E. Stone, now counselor and former general manager of the Associated Press, Mr. Lawson's partner in ownership of the Daily News for a dozen years and his colleague in the organization and development of the Associated Press was one of the first of the notables of the world of journalism to arrive for the funeral. Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, George Rogers of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, were others who hastened to Chicago.

NEAR AGREEMENT ON CLAIM FOR BRIDGE AID

(Special to Post-Crescent) Neenah—The city of Neenah probably will have to build two short bridges over the canal on the Fox river here in order to secure state aid for building the long bridge over the river, according to a report of the Wisconsin Highway commission read at a joint meeting of the Winnebago road and bridge committee and the Neenah city council at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The city stands ready to take this action, provided the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power Co., which operates street cars over the bridge will consent to share the cost of the work.

It is possible that the city can prove that at one time the two canals were part of the main river channel. If this proof is accepted by the commission the state will build the entire structure. The highway commission will include this in its report to Madison and will set a time for building the bridges.

Federal Squad Makes Clean-up at Milwaukee After Weeks of Sleuthing

Milwaukee—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents were preparing Monday to press their cases against 100 men who were taken in raids early Saturday night, when four roadhouses in the vicinity of Milwaukee were visited by 80 federal agents.

Those arrested in the raids were to appear in federal court Monday morning. According to the prohibition officers 60 of the men taken were arrested after they were seen to serve liquor and will be charged with having liquor in their possession.

Thirty-six men were seen to leave automobiles, carrying liquor into the roadhouses, and will be charged with transportation of liquor and in addition to other penalties, their automobiles will be confiscated.

Four men were arrested as proprietors of the roadhouses. Federal agents began visiting the roadhouses five weeks ago, and have continued frequent the places since. The men became acquainted with the manner in which the places conducted their business, and with the assistance of a group of imported agents rushed through the raids, which were staged at the same moment, accomplishing what prohibition enforcement officer John B. Madden termed "perfect raids."

NOOSE STILL DANGLES OVER
SCOTT'S HEAD

Declaration Is Abroad That He Is Declared Sane and Will Be Hung

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—An unnamed member of the staff of State's Attorney Crowe was quoted by the Herald and Examiner, Monday as saying that Russell T. Scott, convicted murderer, would be returned from the Chester hospital for the insane within four weeks to face the Cook-count gallows once more.

The newspaper said that the attack of the state's attorney's office had revealed that an informal decision that Scott is not insane had been made by Dr. Frank A. Stubbelfield, superintendent of the hospital, and that the latter was awaiting only the corroboration of his decision by two consultant experts before sending Scott back.

Scott recently was taken to Chester after a jury had capped the climax of his extraordinary efforts to escape the gallows by finding him insane.

Scott faced hanging three times, only to be snatched from the noose by some unexpected eleventh hour development. The last time on July 24, when Judge David granted a stay of execution pending the insanity hearings, four hours before the death march. Scott's commitment papers ordered that he be confined at Chester until death or until he was found sane.

Dr. Herman Adler, state criminologist and the state alienist, were stated to be the two experts whose decisions the Chester superintendent was awaiting.

DOCTOR MAKES DENIAL

Chester, Ill.—(AP)—Dr. Frank A. Stubbelfield, superintendent of the state hospital for the commercial insane here Monday characterized reports that Russell T. Scott, convicted murderer, was found sane as "all wrong."

"Scott is and has been under no observation here for some time but no decision regarding him has been made," the warden said. "Reports that he has been found sane are all wrong."

"I have reached no decision regarding Scott and have had no communication whatever with the state's attorney's office in Chicago regarding the case."

The warden likewise declined to intimate as to when he expected a decision in the case, saying that it might not be for some time.

which now is arriving. All of the merchants are making big sacrifices to move the summer stock and as a result amazing bargains will be available.

Because of the large interest in the August sale merchants will offer bargains over three days. It was feared that if the sale was confined to one day the crowds would be so large they could not be accommodated.

Practically every line of merchandise obtainable in Appleton will be offered at bargain prices so that it will be possible to stock up the home and farm with about everything that is needed.

The Post-Crescent will issue a special August Bargain Days number on Wednesday, replete with announcements of bargains obtainable during the three days.

KILLED IN FIGHT

Chicago University Youth Dies
After Altercation With Italians

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—A University of Chicago medical student was beaten to death and a companion slugged by gangsters Sunday following a fancied insult to three sisters which was resented by the escort of the girls.

The slain student was John Henry Klassin, 25, of Mankato, Kans., and his companion was John R. Mitcham, a son of A. T. Micham, wealthy oil operator of Fort Worth, Texas. Eight men, including Archie Carlini, 21, named as alleged leader of the attack are under arrest. Confessions are said by police to have been obtained from four of them. Klassin's skull was fractured, apparently by a paving stone, and he died without regaining consciousness.

Miss Inez Praise, 16-year-old daughter of an Italian banker, was standing on the front porch of her home, with her younger sisters Dolores and Irene and her sweetheart, Carlini, when the students passed.

"You are certainly a lucky fellow" to have three girls, one of the said to Archie, according to the story told by Inez. "Let's make it a party and go somewhere."

"What do you think these girls are?" Archie asked appearing to be angry. "They're decent and there's not going to be any party."

Then Inez said, the students apologized and walked away. Mitcham, who is being held as a witness said that he and Klassin went to a restaurant thinking the matter was ended but on coming out, found Carlini and his companions awaiting them. The students were both slugged. They fought back but were overwhelmed.

Victor Bassa, one of the men under arrest, admitted he had struck the student with a piece of concrete paving block.

BRUSH FIRES SCARE
DOUGLAS-CO FARMERS

Superior—(AP)—Several small brush fires in northeastern Douglas county are causing farmers and others in that region great concern, according to James M. McNaughton, state game warden for this district. Warden McNaughton stated that although the fires were not serious they were forerunner of what might be expected if the present drought is not broken. Rainfall for August at the head of the lakes is more than 3 inches under normal so far this month and the woods are like tinder, according to Warden McNaughton.

Milwaukee Man Dies in Hospital After Wild Fight With His Family

Milwaukee—(AP)—John Warner was shot and killed here Sunday night after he attacked members of his family and menaced Patrolman James Spurgin with a butcher knife as he attempted to quiet the man.

Spurgin responded to a call from neighbors, who advised a call from his family about the yard and had beaten his wife and attempted to stab his stepson, Leo Sutter, with a butcher knife.

When he arrived, Warner, according to the report of the police, attacked the knife and the patrolman avoided the knife several times. At last, crowded into a corner the patrolman drew his pistol and fired low, attempting to frighten the man. He found it necessary, however, to protect himself and shot higher. The bullet took effect in the groin. Warner died later at a hospital.

FRANCE WILL HAVE 62 YEARS
TO PAY DEBTS

Caillaux Mistaken in Belief That He Can Arrange More Liberal Terms

SETTLEMENT IS NEAR NOW

Finance Minister Won't Take Chance on Failure of Debt Parley Here

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1925, by Post Pub. Co.

Cablegrams from France reveal an extraordinary change in the attitude of the government there toward the payment of war debts. Not that the United States government has been in any doubt that France ultimately would cease talking cancellation and begin talking payment but the inferences that may be drawn from the few semi-official expressions that have come out of Paris bear out the prediction of an early settlement.

Members of the American World War debt commission have known for some time that France would scrutinize the Belgian settlement and then shape her own policy. They have known also that if Joseph Caillaux, finance minister, did not come in person to the parleys in Washington in September it would mean there was little chance of an agreement.

It is therefore regarded as very significant that immediately after the terms of the Belgian settlement were announced, the dispatches from Paris told of M. Caillaux's prospective departure. It was reasoned in Washington that if the French finance minister gave a real chance of making a settlement he would go to America but if he thought the opportunity to settle was doubtful he would not risk the political consequences of failure. M. Caillaux is still undecided about coming, according to reports received in the last 24 hours.

AMERICA IMPATIENT And there isn't any question about the economic as well as the political effects of any postponement of payment. The American government has reached the point where it is somewhat impatient with the delay and with all the hackneyed arguments that have been used in the last seven years to secure cancellation of debts.

The cablegrams from abroad telling of the various proposals that France will make in Washington are regarded as "feelers" designed to mould American public opinion. The French have the idea that their proposals to pay will be regarded sympathetically and that a decided change may yet be brought about in the hitherto fixed determination of the American debt funding commission.

But the French never were more mistaken. The terms to be given France are already decided. The informal conversations by ambassadors at Paris and Washington have made that plain. The term of years for payment will be 62 which is what Great Britain and Belgium were granted. The interest rate on the debt accumulated in the last seven years may bear a different per cent from the interest of the future years. There is some flexibility there dependent on the size of the payments that France can make and there is a chance of a suspension of charges for

Committee Will Meet With Mine Workers in Hope of Averting Suspension

SESSION WILL BE PUBLIC

Lewis Asks That Public and Press Be Admitted to Discussion of Wages

Philadelphia, Pa.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers Monday accepted an invitation to a conference between anthracite mine workers and citizens of the hard coal regions and Hazleton, Pa., at noon Tuesday. The invitation was extended by John H. Uhl, chairman of a citizens committee of Wilkesbarre. Mr. Lewis insisted that the meeting be conducted as an open forum with press and public privileged to attend.

Mr. Uhl asked for the meeting in order to permit his committee to express its views. He emphasized that the body was "entirely neutral in its attitude" and had only one purpose in mind.

This he said was: "To serve all residents of the anthracite producing countries and all users of the anthracite by bringing together the contending parties in the belief that further conferences between them will result in a suspension of the strike and in a settlement."

In insisting that conference be open to the public Mr. Lewis said: "I feel that the subject is of such importance that it warrants a formal meeting under circumstances where aside from the attendance of Mr. Uhl, committee and representative of the United Mine Workers of America representative of the public press and such of the general public as may wish will be permitted to attend."

Mr. Lewis asked Mr. Uhl whether his committee was opposed to any wage increase in renewal of the agreement expiring in the coal fields Aug. 31. Mr. Uhl replied this could best be answered by the committee as a whole. He indicated no personal opposition.

COMMUNISTS WANT MOROCCO WAR STOPPED

Marseilles, France—(AP)—The Communist congress, after listening Sunday to grievances of the Mediterranean fleet as presented by three uniformed Bluejackets, and speeches by Depictes Cachin, Marty and Doriot, adopted a resolution protesting against war in general and the war in Morocco in particular. In the meantime at the other end of the city, the Workers Socialist international, or second international under the presidency of the American congressman, Victor Berger, worked steadily through a weighty program.

No incident arose to ruffle the academic calm of the proceedings here but it is understood the meetings of the committee which preceded the public session were livelier and for this reason it is supposed members of the press, except those representing socialist organs, were excluded.

The body was removed to the home of her parents at Elmhurst, where funeral services will be conducted Tuesday.

The body was removed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kaltz of Elmhurst, Monday afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning from St. Boniface church at Anwa. Burial will be in the Anwa cemetery.

Miss Kaltz had been employed as maid by the Joseph Koffend, Jr., family, who were occupying the William H. Zuehlke cottage at the beach. Everything that could possibly be accomplished to aid the girl in her escape was resorted to by the Koffend family and when her release was finally effected, the fire had already burned her about her hands and chest. # CHINESE TREES MAY END BLIGHT

Seeds of Two Kinds Imported in Experiments to Save Tanneries

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—With a view to relieving the tanning industry from the blow suffered as a result of the blight that has swept over the domestic chestnut trees, the department of agriculture is experimenting with Chinese chestnut trees which, it is hoped, will be found blight proof.

Seeds of two kinds of Chinese chestnut trees have been imported, one of the wild chestnut in southern China, and the other of the hairy chestnut in northern China. The southern China plants will be distributed through the south, and the other kind through the colder regions of the country.

The American blight has been working southward, at times as rapidly as 25 miles a year, cleaning out the chestnut trees as it goes. It was first observed in 1904 in New York, apparently coming in from the Orient, and crossed Virginia at the rate of 20 miles annually. It has now almost covered the chestnut area of the country, being as far south as northern Georgia, eastern Tennessee and eastern Kentucky.

Chestnut bark is used in the tanning industry, and with the ravages of the blight and the consequent lessening of the tree supply, that industry has been hard hit.

TAKE STEPS TO EFFECT BETTER SCHOOL LIGHTS

New York—The National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, seeking the protection of school children from eye strain, is undertaking to acquaint every school teacher in the United States with the principles of correct lighting. To this end it will send to the superintendent of schools in every state, county and city having a school population of 25,000 or more a communication based on the code of lighting school buildings prepared by experts, and approved as the American standard.

The committee says its studies indicate that 12 per cent of American school children have defective vision.

INSIDE OF STAR LIKE TRAFFIC IN NEW YORK

London—The inside of a star was described in a series of lectures, on atoms, electrons and other wave dashes, about in all directions and continually colliding, by Professor of Astronomy at Cambridge university, in a recent lecture before the British Royal Institution.

"The atoms and electrons never get anywhere," Professor Eddington explained, "as they merely change places. The ether waves make a slow general flow outward, and this flow, when it reaches the surface, makes the heat that the energy of the star is sending out."

FORM MOTORCADE COUNTY COPS NAB HERE TO ATTEND SEVEN SPEEDERS FAIR AT SEYMOUR ON RURAL ROADS

Car Owners Asked to Line Up at C. of C. at Noon on Wednesday

In order to make the Appleton attendance at the Seymour fair on Wednesday, Appleton, a booster trip and demonstration, Appleton residents with automobiles are asked to line up near the Appleton Chamber of Commerce headquarters and follow the Artillery band to the fair.

Every automobilist is requested to be in line at 12 o'clock noon so that the motorcade can start moving promptly at 12:15. The Artillery band will head the caravan, and must be in Seymour in time to start its concert at 1:30. The expenses of the band concert at the fair on Appleton day is being borne by Appleton merchants cooperating with the chamber of commerce. Most of the money necessary for this project has already been collected. The band also will play at the fair on Thursday when it fills an engagement for the fair association.

The chamber of commerce still has a quantity of automobile banners, windshield stickers and hatbands advertising Appleton with the familiar slogan, "You'll like Appleton," which may be obtained by fair visitors upon request. Some of the stockholders will act as a trading center by reminding fair visitors that Appleton is only a 45-minute drive from Seymour.

EFFICIENT GAS DEPOTS UNKNOWN IN GERMANY

Berlin—American wayside gasoline stations soon will be found along German highways, and it probably will not be long before the free air sign will also appear.

Gasoline today is served from shops in the clumsiest sort of way, but the increase in motor traffic is turning German eyes toward the quick and economical methods so generally used in the United States, and trade journals are showing many pictures of model stations along American highways. As a result a German firm has bought a number of American gasoline service station pumps, and will install them.

Record temperatures of over the 100 mark were recorded from the eastern Dakotas on Sunday, and this "low" will cause mostly cloudy and somewhat unsettled weather in this section tonight and Tuesday with fairly high temperatures. A sharp drop in temperature follows in the rear of the "low." Freezing temperatures being reported from Alberta this morning.

EVERY INDUSTRY HERE ASKED TO REPORT PRODUCTS

Chamber of Commerce Wants to Make Best Possible Showing at Milwaukee

While the response to the Appleton Chamber of Commerce's request of local manufacturers for a detailed list of all the various products turned out by Appleton industries has been quite gratifying there are still about 15 per cent of the manufacturers who have made no report.

The list is desired by the committee on industry and transportation for use in its array of statistics at the Appleton section in the Wisconsin Products exposition of the state fair next week. It is quite imperative that all reports reach the office by tonight, it was announced by Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary of the chamber of commerce.

It will enhance the value of the exhibits, if it is brought to the attention of the fair visitors just what kind of articles are manufactured in Appleton, it is pointed out. The committee wishes to include every item. The expense of the statistical exhibits is being borne by the chamber of commerce.

There is still some available space for industrial exhibits at the Wisconsin Products exposition at prices ranging from $15 and up. The fees are collected by the Manufacturers-bldg officials, but a part of the total expense is being borne by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

Some members of the committee will go to Milwaukee Thursday to prepare the exhibits, and it will be arranged to have one man or more at the booth all during the fair. Mr. Corbett will be present himself to give information concerning Appleton.

DOG'S BARKING GIVES ALARM, BUT HOUSE BURNS

The residence of Walter Oberstadt of Maple Creek burned to the ground at about 8:30 Friday evening. The origin of the fire is not known. Mr. Oberstadt, who was the only person in the house at the time of the fire, was awakened by the frenzied barking of his dog, and on investigating found that the upper story of the house was on fire. "The House That Reliability Built"

Add-A-Piece

So many years are spent in building up a home that it must be done slowly and with careful planning. But it is quite worth the time. If you are not alone in your interest and enthusiasm. Make it a tradition in your family that each month some one member, from the oldest to the youngest, contributes just a bit of beauty toward the home. In some cases it might be a desk, an easy chair, or a handsome walnut chest; in others, especially where the earnest striving of the younger people is concerned, an inexpensive little side table or a small lamp. You will be surprised at the spirit of comradeship it will foster, and how your home will radiate the personalities of each of its members and the love and interest of all.

SPEED USUALLY EXPLANATION

Sunday ought to be made a day of rest for a lot of overworked speedometers.

That is a humorous statement of a very serious need. The Monday newspaper everywhere has become a motor casualty list. One is tempted to look down the columns not for whether automobile accidents occurred but whether one's friends were among the victims.

And this situation prevails largely because speedometers have been overworking. Despite all that has been said that at times it is safe for autoists to attain high speed, the facts are that it is not safe. Just where the dividing line between safety and danger lies is for others to determine, but high speed in the popular sense is nine times out of ten the cause of accidents.

A car runs off a bridge. It could not if the car were under control. One car is rammed by another. Even the victim car might have avoided the accident had its speed been lower. A child is run down. More often than not this tragedy might be averted if the automobile were going slower. In most instances speed, even speed within the law, is responsible for the bloodshed and the property damage.

The lesson that the motorist needs to learn is moderation. The American lost his liquor because he did not know how to use it. He has lost other things and will lose more unless he learns the lesson of moderation.

SIDEWALKS ON THE PIKES?

Sidewalks may have to be provided along all rural highways at some time in the future. They would cost an enormous amount of money and probably would introduce a complicating factor into the problem of road improvement.

If sidewalks along rural roads generally are not to become imperative a way will have to be found to protect pedestrians from road hogs. People afoot have equal rights on the roads with automobiles. Yet there are large numbers of drivers who ignore pedestrians' rights, imperil their safety and seem to take delight in bespattering them with mud or covering them with dust. Considerate drivers there are, but they appear to be few, and the walker on the public highway is in grave danger from the large numbers of inconsiderate ones.

The "rules of the road" do not appear to apply with respect to people afoot. That courtesy which has grown up among motorists, often more respected in the breach than in the observance though it be, should be extended. If pedestrians' rights are not voluntarily recognized and respected, steps will have to be taken to enforce them, or safe walks beside the rural roads will have to be provided. It is for motorists in the country to make plain whether they want more restrictions on their liberties or higher taxes for road improvements, which must come if they do not accord more consideration than is due from them to walkers.

HOW TO STOP CRIME

There is no great secret which America must pry out and apply in its war on crime. Most crime can be halted by a very simple expedient, which many foreign courts and some of our own courts are bringing to bear every day.

Newspapers are justly calling attention to a recent illustration of this sure fire method as it developed in a Roxbury, Massachusetts, county court recently. On a Tuesday two robbers held up a merchant, beat him with the butt of a gun when he yelled for help, and were finally captured. Wednesday forenoon they were indicted by a grand jury, and arraigned the same afternoon, one pleading guilty and the other demanding trial. A jury was promptly called, returned a verdict of guilty in 14 minutes, and turned the culprit over to the judge who sentenced one of them to prison for ten to twelve years and the other for five to seven.

Twenty-four hour service like that would impress the sour fruits of robbery upon wrongdoers. Rotten politics, sentimentalism and a system of law which gives the criminal and his clever lawyer every conceivable advantage have turned our courts except in rare instances like the above over to the uses, rather than the prevention of crime. The whole secret of defeating the organized underworld is to punish its depredations promptly, before the memory of the misdeed is cold either in the criminal's mind or the public's.

There are of course a thousand and one methods which might be applied to bring back the criminal court procedure of this nation to a condition guaranteeing that result. Abolition of capital punishment, the murder's best friend, and substitution of penalties which will get a jury to act with its brain instead of its tear ducts, is one. Stiffening up of the code on bail and bond, removal of the evil of continuances, creation of a simplified jury drawing system somewhat on the English order with a reduced number of peremptory challenges or none at all, are others. The sum of many improvements would be a shortened period for all trials, and would incline many men of superior talents to be willing to serve on juries.

But there is just one ultimate goal for all attempts to solve the crime problems of the United States. It is simplification to eliminate the present hopeless delay. Take away delay and you take away the principal aid of the desperado, the one great resource of politics allied with the crime ring.

SOME OF THOSE WHO VOTE

How much should one know, about what is going on about him, to be qualified to vote?

Well, here is how much one voter knew:

Joe Rodriguez of Martinez, Calif., left his cabin one evening and went down to the neighboring city of Oakland, only a few miles away, to "bum around a while and have a good time."

He registered at a hotel in the middle of town, where he was well known, visited his brother-in-law and other friends, went to the movies, and "bummed around" generally.

The very night he left a man was murdered in the factory adjacent to Joe's cabin, and the body was identified as Joe. Every edition of every paper sold in Oakland was full of the murder, with headlines all across the page. Everybody in Oakland who ever read anything, or who knew anybody who did, was talking about it.

Joe was far more famous than any candidate for office he will ever have to vote for. Also, his own reported murder would naturally be more interesting to him than any political issue will ever be. But Joe and his friends were probably the only people in Oakland who did not notice of his sudden fame. They did not notice the newspaper headlines themselves, though they were being shouted on the streets all around them, nor talk to anyone who did.

After he had "bummed" enough, Joe walked back to his cabin, astonished at the attention he attracted. And this man, who did not know that he was himself the public character of the moment, is a voter, to choose other public characters, to rule over him—and us!

LUNCH

It's funny how your appetite will often rule your mind, and make you buy a lot of food you'll likely leave behind. You see a mess of dishes that appear to be a treat, and then you purchase much too much for any man to eat.

You work all through the morning, then, at noon you get the hunch that will be feeling better if you hurry out to lunch. You join the merry throng that takes the middle of the day to court a lot of pains and aches at luncheon or cafe.

There's roasted beef and gravy and there's pork and navy beans. You start to figure closely on the dough that's in your jeans. Your hunger's running rampant and you eat with lots of vim. Then when your lunch is over you are filled up to the brim.

The food that's still around you, with a saddened eye you scan. You've simply got to waste it, 'cause you've eaten all you can. Your appetite's a fooler, is the fact that you have found. But, shucks, you do the same thing, when tomorrow comes around.

PRINTERS INHALE IT, TOO.

Clippings of the story of the girl who turned blue from nitrobenzene poisoning, which she suffered because she wore shoes dyed with shoe polish in which nitrobenzene was a solvent, are still coming in from folks who believe all they read in the papers. According to this now somewhat shopworn newspaper yarn, the victim of the nitrobenzene "absorbed the poison through the unbroken skin of her feet." That is just what I have been reiterating can't happen, and readers who mail me the clipping extend their sympathy and condolence over my utter confusion. The explanation that the poison is absorbed through the skin would be interesting if true, but like a good many other things one reads in the papers it is not.

Nitrobenzene is very volatile, and if any of it is absorbed into the system at all it is absorbed through the lungs. The same fact applies to various other kinds of poisoning which are still popularly attributed to absorption through the unbroken skin and still explained in that way by physicians who do not care much about physiology. I have not yet summoned sufficient courage to question or deny the accuracy of the experiments of Prof. Louis H. Kahlenberg, who reported recently that he had been able to prove that boracic acid can be absorbed through the unbroken skin, but I do dissent most positively that up to the time of Professor Kahlenberg's report we had no scientific evidence that any medicament, poison, food, water or other substance is ever absorbed through the unbroken skin, and I challenge anybody who entertains the contrary belief to produce such evidence.

Lead poisoning in painters, printers and various other craftsmen has often been attributed to absorption of the lead through the skin, but no good authority now holds such a view. The lead is absorbed either in a volatile state, as in the fumes from molten metal or as dust in the air inhaled or it is directly ingested. Persons employed in any of the scores of trades in which lead or lead compounds are used should be particularly careful to avoid eating lead unnecessarily, either with their chewing tobacco, gum, candy, lunch or from their unclean fingers. Even when the industrial laws or regulations do not offer protection to the workers it should be the rule never to eat in the shop or work room, and never to eat anywhere without first having carefully washed the hands. Probably the majority of cases of industrial or occupational lead poisoning are due to the inhalation of volatilized lead from fumes given off by the molten metal. The most effective prevention of that consists in mechanical ventilation which draws off such fumes and carries the poison out of the shop. Then there are various means of preventing or at least diminishing dust in the air the worker has to breathe, and such precautions prevent lead poisoning of that kind.

Painters working in close rooms or poorly ventilated places are not more subject to lead poisoning than outdoor painters are, but they are more subject to poisoning by the inhalation of other volatile poisons, such as turpentine, wood alcohol, aniline, benzol, nitrobenzene, amyl acetate ("banana oil") and other solvents used in paints, stains and finishes. The indoor painter is more exposed to lead poisoning when he scrapes or rubs dry painted surfaces, dusty work.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Elimination of the Mossback.

Nine months ago you advised me to consult another doctor, after one had treated me for six months for acute indigestion. You assured me that this was a sound diagnosis. So I was examined by three other doctors and was convinced that my trouble was not "indigestion" but gallstones. Had the gall bladder and stones and my appendix removed last July and I now feel wonderfully well. Thanks to you. (Mrs. B. L.)

Answer—Any painful, disabling or seriously handicapping trouble which is labeled "indigestion" is falsely so labeled, no matter who the doctor may be.

Rubbing Alcohol.

Can denatured alcohol be safely used for rubbing or massaging of for any external application? If not what can be used? (R. P. E.)

Answer—There are various ways of "denaturing" alcohol prescribed by the federal authorities, and some denaturing processes give a preparation which is safe for external application, and this is commonly sold by druggists as "medicated alcohol."

SEEN, HEARD

IMAGINED

---that's all there is to life

HOWDY, FOLKS! You will excuse us for the grammatical blunder—we stand corrected by this year's junior high school freshman that "folks" is not a good word, and that the "s" is quite superfluous. But we wanted to make it clear that this column once had "readers" and not merely "a reader."

That was before Little Rollo became a hibernating animal. The vacation season has developed into a period of hibernation. Any one can do it. In order to hibernate, take two weeks to "vacate" and then take four weeks to recuperate.

This business of being a funny editor sometimes really has a humorous side—for the other fellow. For instance, the boss, who is capable of doing the work of three ordinary men—which makes him a sort of super-ordinary man—goes on a vacation. That means that three men must each do two men's work. That puts everybody in a fine state of humor, and consequently, we laugh so much that we don't need any funny kolum.

Rollo has a regular staff of assistants who contribute to the column and sign themselves "Vox Populi" or "Taxpayer" or "Dizzy Liz." Ye funny editor would not know this except for the word of the cashier that the assistants are getting their monthly dollar and a half for doing that very thing. That is another joke, only the "gentle reader" may not find it very funny.

Now when Rollo loafs, the entire staff loafs. So when the man who runs this newspaper comes around and mutters something to himself about the lost art of columnizing and passes a gentle hint that a few more acorns of evolution may see the passing of the human "funny bone"—that's how we came to find out that there is more than one reader of this column.

While we were gone on a vacation, the editor of Manitowoc's "Main Street," the column that keeps the mariner folk smiling, breezed into this office. This was a rare opportunity that we just hated to miss. All our life we've had an ambition to see a real funny editor. But the people in this office say he never cracked any jokes at all while he was here. All he did was to ask, "Where's Rollo?" and when told he was on a vacation, inquired, "Well, isn't there anyone else that knows how to use a pair of shears?"

So, having sharpened our shears, and refilled our paste pot, we are ready to resume work where we left off on the stack of 1888 almanacs. This is to serve notice on the editors of "Main Street," "Hit or Miss," "Whim Whams," and all the other columns that the almanacs are OUR almanacs anyway, we having paid for them with the "P-C" readers' money.

Just because this column hasn't been operating for a little while is no reason to suspect that there is no more funny business in the city hall, or that the politicians have quit talking, or that mother-in-laws are minding their own business, or that the boss has improved his style at golf.

RAPID TRANSIT WAS DREAM OF BADGER IN '60

Norman Wiard Spent Much Money and Work on Locomotive Sleigh, Car and Boat

Rapid transit contrivances were the dream of inventors long before the automobile came to dazzle and delight the world. In the summer of 1860 Norman Wiard was busy explaining to the people of Wisconsin a locomotive sleigh car and boat, or carriage on runners, designed to make the great rivers of the continent available for the speedy transportation of freight and passengers during the winter months.

Preliminary work on his invention, he said, had cost him four years and ten thousand dollars. A working model exhibited in Milwaukee was declared to be an accurate representation of the practically completed invention at Prairie du Chien, the latter being described as follows: Essentially a cabin or car, resting on a sort of hull, with water-tight compartments, supported on runners, the cabin being above the surface of the water when on an unfrozen stream. On the ice, the car operates on four short runners, with polished shoes of chilled cast iron. The motive power is derived from two high-pressure engines, whose connecting-rods are attached at the crank-shaft of a single driving-wheel situated in the middle of the back part of the hull, its periphery being furnished with short and sharp flanges that cut into the ice and give the required hold on the surface. The elevated tower in the front, overlooking the field of travel, contains the steering wheel controlling the forward runners. The car weighs about three and a half tons, costs $2,000, and can be managed by two men while running at a speed of twenty or thirty miles an hour, with a consumption of two to three cords of wood in twenty-four hours.

Mr. Wiard had conceived modifications of his device, such as a prelie stage, an Arctic carriage for polar expeditions, and a light vehicle for passengers only. "The grand saving involved," he pointed out, was "attainable because nature herself lays and keeps in repair all the tracks required, wholly free of expense." He seems to have reached the end of his own financial resources and counted upon securing assistance from investors. After supplying cars for the business expected to develop on the 26,000 miles of rivers in the northern and northwestern states, it was his intention to visit St. Petersburg and enlist the interest of the Czar of Russia.

The idea does not seem to have occurred to Mr. Wiard that there would be difficulties in the practical working of his plan. Wood fuel, for instance, could not be carried far and might be hard to get on long trips. Gasoline had not "arrived." However, the obstacle that proved insurmountable was of a financial character. During the interval between the panic of 1857 and the Civil war money in sums of thousands was virtually unobtainable in the West.

HAIL! HAIL! AND DAMAGE IT DOES

Political Crisis Was Weathered Out in Germany by Story of Fanciful Storm

In the year 1757 there was much excitement in Berlin over rumors of an impending war. In order to give the people something else to think about, writes C. F. Talmont in The Mentor, King Frederick the Great caused a fanciful story to be published in the newspapers about a hail storm at Potsdam, in which hailstones as big as pumpkins were said to have killed cattle. The story had the desired effect. The public was all agog about the new wonder, meteorology crowded belligerence out of the limelight, and a political crisis was successfully weathered by a bogus storm.

Hail is an episode of the thunder storm, and, like the latter, is of worldwide occurrence. It falls in the equatorial and polar regions, though it is more common in middle latitudes. When a summer thunderstorm approaches, hail is most likely to fall at the beginning of the storm, and it seldom lasts more than a few minutes. As a rule, it falls over only a small area compared with the storm as a whole, and this area frequently takes the form of one or more narrow "hail bands" extending along the general path of the thunderstorm. THREE KINDS True hail is often confounded with form of miniature snowballs, which, because of their small size and because they do not usually fall during the agricultural season, rarely do any damage. One of these takes the form of miniature snowballs, which, unlike hail, crumble easily and have therefore sometimes been called "soft hail." The German name for this kind of precipitation is "graupel," and this name is now in general scientific use in English. The other form of icy particles consists of little pellets or angular fragments of clear ice—frozen raindrops. This is now officially called "sleet" in the United States. Unfortunately other things are widely given the same name, both in this country and abroad, and the term "sleet" has given rise to a vast amount of confusion and discussion.

A distinguishing feature of a true hailstone is that it is composed partly of ice and partly of snow. Large hailstones frequently show several alternate layers of these substances. This peculiar structure is explained by the fact that hail is formed in a turbulent region at the front of a thundercloud, where it makes several journeys up and down between relatively cold and relatively warm levels of the atmosphere before finally falling to the ground. At high levels the incipient hailstone is coated with snow, and at lower levels with rain, which changes to ice as the stone is again carried aloft. The center of the hailstone is snowy, probably consisting of graupel. Most hailstones are approximately spherical or somewhat conical, but other and very striking shapes are sometimes found. Occasionally the surface is encrusted with curious crystalline growths. From The Mentor.

CIVILIAN LIFE ALSO HAS ITS DRAWBACKS

Ordinary civilian life in the big city of Chicago is fraught with more dangers than chasing obstinate speeders on the roads of Outagamie-co., according to a letter received by Appleton friends of Jack Frenz, a member of the county motorcop corps in 1924, who now is residing in the Windy city. Frenz is the son of August Frenz, proprietor of the Appleton Auto, Radiator and Metal Works on E. Washington-st.

Mrs. Lena Ashman, 908 N. Superior-st., entertained about 25 persons Sunday at a dinner in honor of the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hafemeister of Wauwatosa and Oscar Schroeder of Los Angeles, Calif., who is spending sometime visiting with relatives in Appleton. The afternoon was spent informally.

A triple birthday party was held Sunday at the home of C. W. Palmer in honor of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Sadie Liberty of Milwaukee and her two daughters, Mrs. Palmer of Appleton and Mrs. Charles Ware of Quakka. A dinner and supper was served to about 22 persons. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. August Barnett, Winnebago; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ware and son Gordon, Quakka; Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Mottard, Appleton; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hanson, Oshkosh.

Mrs. J. F. Woolz, 324 E. Washington-st., will entertain two tables of bridge Monday afternoon. The party is for Mrs. A. J. McKay of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Koss, 202 E. Wisconsin-ave., entertained a number of friends Sunday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Visser of Los Angeles. Mr. Visser was harpist for the Green Harp orchestra for nearly 20 years. A feature of the party was the fact that the entire orchestra which played together ten years ago was present. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Gibson, Fond du Lac; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Andrews, Antigo; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Sheldon, Green Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller, Mr. and Mrs. E. ## OPEN RANKIN-ST HILL TO TRAFFIC

Street Closed for Years Is Opened While Meade-st Intersection Is Being Paved

For the first time in about four years the steep hill on S. Rankin-st off E. John-st is being used for transit.

While proceeding along a Chicago street on his "bike" on Sunday, Aug. 9, Jack rammed head-on into a Ford parked on one side of the street with all its light out with the result that his motorcycle is a complete wreck and he is writing to his friends from the comforts of a downy bed. Jack injured his ankle and suffered other bad bruises. The more he sees of Chicago, the more he wishes he was back in old Wisconsin, he said in closing.

The bars and stone wall which barred traffic on the hill for these years have been removed on account of the paving project on S. Meade-st. The E. John-st intersection of S. Rankin-st is the last approach to the E. John-st bridge, as the S. Rankin-st had previously been barricaded on account of the steep and dangerous ascent. According to Robert Hackworthy, city street commissioner, this intersection will be kept open as long as possible for the convenience of the morning public.

When the intersection is closed, however, it will leave the automobile the choice of driving down or up S. Rankin-st hill, or avoiding the bridge entirely by detouring to S. Lawrence-st. It is expected that the intersection will be closed about six weeks. Danger signs have been posted by the street department at the intersections of E. John-st and S. Rankin-st, and Mr. Hackworthy requests that automobilists approaching this intersection from any angle use all due caution in order to avoid accidents. By proper handling of the car, it is possible to climb S. Rankin-st hill steep as it is, for as soon as the barricades were removed dozens of automobiles began using the thoroughfare of detour.

PICNICS

Members of Appleton Maennerchor and their families enjoyed a day's outing at Pierce park on Sunday. Families brought basket lunches for a picnic dinner and various contests were provided for the children. The Maennerchor furnished entertainment by singing a number of German songs.

Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nussbicker and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Godfrey of Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Godfrey and daughter Marjorie of Wausau, Mr. and Mrs. David Price and Mr. and Mrs. William Nussbicker, Neenah.

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Miss Hazelle O'Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. O'Connell to Harold Schultz, son of Mrs. Theresa Schultz, W. Packard-st. The ceremony will take place Sept. 1 at St. Mary church.

EASY GAME FROM
TWILIGHT STARSSlama's Fast Ball Is Easy
Picking for Heavy-hitting Veterans

Kaukauna—A verdict of 16 to 7 in favor of the old timers was returned after two hours and twenty-five minutes of listless baseball Sunday afternoon in the second benefit game between the former valley leaguers and the young baseball club of the city. Klara, who was slated to pitch for the youngsters, failed to show up, and Mereness, regular pitcher, also took a day off. Slama was sent to the hill and his speed balls with little stuff on them were a delight to the old fellows, who collected 20 bingles. A few errors and considerable poor headwork on the part of the young blood made the game "duck soup" for the winners.

Regenfuss started again for the old-timers, who were touched easily. The Cubs batted around the first inning and dented the platter for five tallies. After Regenfuss got a slow ball working the Cubs were helpless. He retired, however, in the fourth frame in favor of Eddie Johnson who finished the pastime allowing only one bingle.

"Nell" Nagan opened the gate for the old-timers in the second spasm when he leaned on the apple for a home run. Two runs followed on two singles and to fielders' choice. Five more tallies were counted in the third chapter, one in the fourth, two in the sixth, and, to finish up right, five more in the final inning.

Johnson was hit freely but poor base running and a number of force outs kept the youngsters on the bottom. After the first frame the Cubs tallied once in the third and once in the fifth round. The box score tells the story:

KAUKAUNA YOUTHS BACK FROM TRIP TO CANADA

Kaukauna—Stanley Schmidt and Aloysius Hartzheim returned Sunday noon from a two weeks' auto trip through southern Canada. Jerome De Bru and Peter Dorset, the latter of Milwaukee, who also were in the party, remained at Iron River, Mich., and are expected to return home this week. The boys covered approximately 2,400 miles and have the distinction of being the first American tourists to travel from Port Arthur to Nipigon, Ontario, over a new road which is being constructed through the wilderness. The distance between the two places is 18 miles and it required six hours to make the trip.

STILL NEED $300 TO REACH LEGION QUOTA

Kaukauna—Kaukauna American legion's quota in the national legion endowment drive still is an unsettled proposition, only about $700 having been raised to date. The failure of a few soliciting teams to cover their route is said to be responsible for the slowness with which the fund is being raised here. Most of the teams have been at work; many of them have finished their routes and have reported good success.

STAGE And SCREEN

DEMILLE FILM STORY OF MONEY-MAD YOUNG FOLKS

William de Mille's latest Paramount production, "Men and Women," which comes to Fischers on Tuesday, is a fine domestic drama, laid in New York City. It has to do with a young married couple and their longing for the finer things of life—even though they be beyond their means. Near disaster is the result.

Featured in the leading roles of the production are Richard Dix, Nell Hamilton, Claire Adams and Robert Edeson. Dix is a bank cashier and Mrs. Adams plays his wife. She craves pretty clothes. Hamilton, in the role of Ned Seabury, is assistant to Dix in the bank. He has been gambling in Wall Street with great success. He loves Mrs. Prescott and presents her with valuable gifts, much to the displeasure of the husband.

The upshot of the whole thing is that Dix invests some bank funds in Wall Street and they are wiped out. He faces prison until the wife pleads with the men higher up that she alone is to blame. The husband stole that she might have pay back everything when he "cleaned up" on the market. Her plea saves him and he is given another chance.

"Men and Women" was adapted to the screen by Clara Beranger from the stage play by David Belasco and Henry C. DeMille, father of the Paramount producer-director.

Also Harry Langdon in his latest laugh getter "Boobs in the Wood." News and a sea study in colors.

BESSIE LOVE IN NEW BARTHELMESS FILM

Bessie Love scores the hit of her career with her performance of Tetta, the South Sea girl of "Soul Fire." Richard Barthelmess' new First National offering at the Elite Theatre today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

Miss Love's portrayal touches heights of pathos and emotionalism. Indeed, the New York critics pronounced it one of the best characterizations of the entire screen year. Coupled with Barthelmess' fine work as Eric Fane, a musical genius, in this production, rated by the metropolitan reviewers as the most extraordinary work film portrait of his brilliant career, "Soul Fire," can well be said to be the best acted motion picture of the season. Aside from the brilliant acting of Barthelmess and Miss Love, fine performances are contributed by Helen Ware, Harriet Sterling, Walter Long, Effie Shannon, Lee Baker and other members of the unusual cast.

Miss Love has had many excellent hits to her credit in her years before the camera, but none of them equal her Tetta in "Soul Fire."

Miss Love made an instant hit on the screen. She was leading woman to Doug Fairbanks in some of his early screen successes and went rapidly on to stardom.

"Soul Fire" is an adaptation from the stage success, "Great Music." It was produced by John S. Robertson for Inspiration Pictures, Inc.

SCREEN PRODUCTION OF THE
SIGN OF THE ROSE SUPER-LATIVE

George Beban's "The Sign of the Rose" merits all the superlatives misused in an endeavor to excite interest in less deserving photoplays.

This is the caustic compliment of a New York critic describing the special attraction at the New Bijou Theatre today and Tuesday. Equal commendation could scarcely be won by any but an extraordinary picture.

There is excellent reason for this. The production reflects the concentrated experience and artistry of the star, stage and screen veteran of a score of successes, and is magnificently played in the manner he has made peculiarly his own. Beban is unique.

Incident piles upon incidents, pathos upon pathos. Through it all flashes the magnetic presence of George Beban, making of his lovely Italian hero a figure of compelling interest and intense dramatic significance.

The story of Pietro Balett's quest of a rose for his little dead daughter has the simplicity of great art. Like all good art it speaks to the masses in terms understood by all humanity. It is an epic of the heart.

OPEN CARS ARE BECOMING DRUG ON MARKET HERE

Little Demand for Used Cars of Open Type, Dealers Here Declare

Increasing popularity of closed cars are making it hard for owners of open cars to dispose of their machines according to Appleton dealers who find their floors overloaded with second hand open models which are becoming increasingly difficult.

"An inspection of sales records show that 55 per cent of the cars sold here are closed models," one dealer declared. "People are rapidly coming to realize that the closed car will give them more for their money in comfort and convenience and consequently the open model is passing out of demand."

Smaller models of closed cars are as much in demand as the enclosed types of larger makes. There also are a few calls for roadsters.

People dislike the inconveniences of being without a car all winter and the increasing comfort of closed models was the reason given by one dealer for the great demand for closed cars. Efficient heaters, automatic windshield wipers and open highways during the winter have done much to convince people of the usefulness of the automobile as a winter vehicle as well as a summer method of transportation.

Little difference in cost between the open and closed cars has also caused many people to change from the touring type to the sedan.

Except in the case of new models being put on the market there has been no change in car prices here recently, dealers here say.

540,000 CARS OWNED IN STATE

Wisconsin Ranks Twelfth Among States in Number of Cars Owned by Residents

Wisconsin was twelfth among the states of the Union in the number of automobiles owned by its residents during 1924, figures made public by the state highway commission show. There were 540,000 machines registered in this state. New York was first with 1,420,000, followed by California with 1,329,394. Ohio was third with 1,256,000, and Pennsylvania fourth with 1,226,586.

In the amount of revenue derived from motor vehicles, Wisconsin ranked thirteenth with revenues of $6,712,537. New York was again first with $24,080,241. Pennsylvania second with $20,051,021, and Ohio a poor third with $11,721,041.

In the average motor and gas receipts per vehicle, Wisconsin was 42nd, the average of $12.45 being among the lowest reported. Oregon had the highest average, $35.40, while Kansas and Missouri tied for the lowest average of $5.30 each.

The total number of autos and trucks in the U. S. last year was 17,684,830, producing a total revenue to the state governments of $222,842,641. The average receipts per vehicle was $19.65.

NEED REGISTRATION CARDS TO ENTER CANADA

Motorists who contemplate driving into Canada are advised to carry their state auto registration cards with them by local highway authorities. This card is the only identification accepted by the Customs Officers upon entering Canada, and must be presented upon demand. Drivers who intend to display American flags on their cars while touring Canada are requested to observe the rules of international courtesy by displaying a British flag of similar size. All foreign cars entering the Dominion of Canada should carry British flags if they are to carry flags of any other nation. If no flags are displayed, the owner of a car will not be expected to carry the British flag.

400,000 Boy Scouts Are Enrolled In Summer Camps

"Campitis" is an affliction especially prevalent among Boy Scouts, states a local bulletin. "It makes its appearance early in July and continues often until September. The symptoms are an intense longing for swimming, hiking and camping. The only sure cure is outdoor life in a real camp, whence it derives its name."

Over 400,000 Scouts this summer have been successfully combating "campitis." In 3,400 camps in every section of the country the "cure" is working magic.

It is estimated that half a million boys by the end of summer will have spent one week at Scout camps. A gain of almost 200,000 over last year. In 1924 there were 3,237 separate camps, with an enrollment of 397,000 boys for one week each.

Thousands of acres have been added during the past year to the camp-site holdings of Scout councils. These additions will insure facilities for the many new campers who join the ranks. Where purchase is not possible, farsighted camp committees are arranging for long-term leases, with option to buy or renew, desirable properties. As good camp sites are being taken up very rapidly, it is the ambition of every first-class council to own its own camp site today. The ownership of a camp site develops community pride and encourages the year-round camping program. Most of these sites are tax exempt on the basis of being used for educational purposes. Forty-nine councils have so far this year reported new camp sites or new buildings on old camp sites.

99,672 BOX CARS IN NEED OF REPAIR

Small Increase in Number of Bad Order Cars The First Two Weeks of July

Rattling over switches, jerking around curves, bumping to sudden stops and crashing into train lengths to be coupled together is a steady wear on freight cars which causes them very often to be placed in the shops for repair. Each day cars are brought into the shop with bad wheels which must be replaced, battered couplers which must be taken off, broken trucks which have to be repaired or suffering from a score of other injuries which are caused by the daily trips over thousands of miles of hard steel tracks.

INCREASE IN BAD ORDERS According to reports filed by the carriers with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association Class 1 railroads on July 15 and 1925, 672 freight cars in need of repair, or a total of 8.6 per cent of the number on the line. This was an increase over the number needing repair on the first of the month at which time there were 195,468 or 8.5 per cent of the number on the line.

The hard usage to which they are sometimes put is often detrimental to the good condition of locomotives also and hundreds of them, throughout the country are placed in repair shops and are gone over daily and placed in such condition as may be required by the work to which they are assigned. Engineers will tell that the manner in which different drivers handle their locomotives has a great deal to do with the need for repair.

INCREASE FOR LAST YEAR Class 1 railroads on July 15 this year had 1,121 locomotives in need of repair. This was 17.5 per cent of the number on the line, the carrier's reports indicated. This was an increase of 307 over the number in need of repair on July 1 at which time there were 10,917 in need of repair, or 17.1 per cent.

Of the total number 6,101 were in need of classified repairs, an increase of 289, compared with the first of

APPLETON HAS MOST ARTISTIC "CITIES" REPORT

Wisconsin Rapids and Superior Fail to Get Their Reports in on Time

The cities of Superior and Wisconsin Rapids were too late in filing their annual reports in the statewide Better Cities contest conducted by the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, which leaves them out of the running and restricts the race to Appleton, Ashland, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, Janesville, Kenosha, Ladysmith, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Sparta, Waukesha, Waupun and Wausau.

This information was received recently at the office of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce which played a prominent part in collaborating the date for the competition for the prize.

If Appleton does not win the prize for the best city in the state, it will at least have the satisfaction of presenting the most artistic report.

The following praise was voiced by the state committee supervising the campaign:

"One of the most artistic was the report of Appleton, the whole series of eleven reports being placed within a blue leather covering. Each individual report was bound in a blue cloth, with a drawing on the frontispiece illustrative of the topic covered."

Although there are fourteen cities competing, the real race is between the ten cities with a population of over 10,000. They include Appleton, Ashland, Oshkosh, Janesville, Wausau, Sheboygan, Kenosha, Eau Claire, Waukesha, Fond du Lac. The best city in this group will receive a prize of $1,000, and the best cities in the group with a population under 10,000 will receive a prize of $500. These are Waupun, Ladysmith, Sparta and Chippewa Falls.

The plan adopted by the state committee is to send the reports to the judges for scoring, and then to have the judges come to Wisconsin and confer on the basis of the scores they make, selecting five to ten cities of those over 10,000 and the two highest of under 10,000, and next to visit these seven cities. With the exception of the report on religion all reports have already gone to the judges. The rest are still being checked over.

The question of omitting the reports of Superior and Wisconsin Rapids aroused considerable discussion in the committee. These cities did not send their reports in on time. It was decided that much as the committee desired to grade the cities, it would be unfair to the other cities to override the rule of the time limit.

Announcement of the prize winning cities will be made at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work which will take place at the Wisconsin State Fair, Madison, Wis., Sept. 25 to 29. The prize will be awarded the night of Oct. 29. It is expected that each city will send large delegations to the conference.

Judges are as follows: For public administration — Dr. Luther Gulick, director of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, for social welfare — Dr. C. C. Carstens, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America, for recreation — J. R. Bachelier, field director of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, for library — Joseph L. Wheeler, director of the Reuben McMillen Free Library of Poughkeepsie, Ohio, for health — Dr. S. J. Crumrine, assistant director of Hygiene, for town and country relations — Nat. T. Frame, director of agricultural extension, for vocational education — Dr. D. D. Downer, Toledo city planner, for education — W. S. Deffenbaugh, chief of city school division, department of interior, Washington, D. C., for industry — Stewart Scrimshaw, director of industrial relations, Kearney and Trecker.

AUTHORIZE RURAL MAIL ROUTES UP TO 50 MILES

In an amendment recently adopted by the United States postal service, the postal department is authorized to establish rural mail routes of a length not less than 35 miles, and not more than 50 miles, there being no recognized standard length of route. The payment of salaries and furnishing of equipment to such rural mail carriers was likewise authorized by the amendment.

FIRST GRADE CHILDREN IN HEALTH CONTESTS

Appleton first grade children will compete for health prizes in a contest of all Wisconsin first grade children, which has just been announced by Mrs. S. A. Leonard, of Madison, president of the Kindergarten association. The contest will be held this fall.

Three large prizes are to be given for the first grades having the three highest scores for the most 100 per cent perfect children entering school in September. Mrs. Leonard said. The health contest will again be launched a year from this September. The contest has been arranged through the cooperation of the National Parent Teacher's association.

"Work should begin at once for those schools entering the contest this year," Mrs. Leonard said. "Certainly most of our schools should enter for next year."

Doctors Rap Depew Theory That Exercise Is Harmful

There may be many ways to attain a ripe old age, and indeed many formulas have been devised for would-be centenarians by those who have already passed the century mark, or by those who are hovering near it. Many of these patriarchs have the right to say "the first hundred years are the hardest," and many are the explanations and formulas given to the rising generation for attaining longevity. Some of the old timers whose memory stretches almost back to the War of 1812 will say their many years are due to regular habits of eating and sleeping, in fact a life governed by iron clad rules where temperance reigned supreme. Many more of the centenarians will give you just the opposite set of rules for having your span of life measured in three figures. They will say to smoke, drink, chew, cuss, and enjoy yourself generally, by living the most carefree sort of life. All rules, regulations, and the like are taboo to this set of centenarians.

But here is a new theory of long life as exploded by Chauncey M. Depew, who not long ago celebrated his ninety-first birthday. In fact this theory is so new and so radical that it goes against the grain of most people who hear it. Depew's idea is no physical exercise after a man reaches the age of 26.

When asked recently if his fine physical condition was not due to systematic exercise Mr. Depew laughed in scorn at the suggestion, and said: "Exercise? Certainly not. Not only have I never played golf, tennis, baseball, ping pong, or any other fool game, but what's more, I've never even exerted myself to the point of reading the sporting page of a newspaper. Exercise is the diversion of doodlesocks." Mr. Depew also stated that exercise for a man up to the age of 25 or 26 might or might not be valuable, but that for a man beyond that age it was another story.

Appleton doctors interviewed on Mr. Depew's opinion of the folly of exercise said that Mr. Depew was barking up the wrong tree when he said that exercise does more to shorten a man's life than to lengthen it. Every man is a special case unto himself, according to one doctor, who further stated there was no golden rule for the amount of exercise a person should take. This doctor said that the greatest number of cases of long life, and best health in life are among those people who have indulged in some systematic form of exercise. There are people, however, he said, like Chauncey Depew, who have the natural physique to carry them through years of a long life, and of a healthy, happy life without taking hardly any physical exercise. Exercise keeps bodily functions in better shape than when no exercise is taken, according to this doctor.

TOO MUCH KILLS

Longevity cannot be attributed to any certain habits, but an excessive habit of any kind, whether it be sitting in a chair, or the violent exercise of running, carried to excess will shorten one's existence, according to this Appleton doctor. The cause of one's death is usually for.

ANNUAL DEFICIT AT POSTOFFICE

Postal Business Here is Not Sufficient to Pay for Operating Costs

Only the postoffices in the larger cities of the country pay their way according to a statement made by William H. Zuehlke, Appleton postmaster, in explaining the deficit of $27,149,000 in the postoffice department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925.

The big bulk of the mail matter of the country originates from the offices of the 50 largest cities of the country, and the surplus taken in by them goes a long way in reducing the deficit of the department. The deficit caused by the rural department runs from $75,000,000 to $80,000,000 annually, it was said. The Appleton postoffice is, of course, in the class of offices which have a yearly deficit, but no definite or approximate figures were available as to the amount of annual loss.

Obligations reported by bureaus of the postal department for the last fiscal year amounted to $649,371,000, while estimated revenues were $600,500,000 from which a deduction must be made of $11,622,000 for estimated increases in outstanding liabilities and for civil service retirement.

found in the country church yard six feet under the sod. More people die from getting rusty than die from being worn out by physical work or exertions, said this doctor.

An Appleton business man when interviewed on the subject of Depew's theory of exercise said that Depew could very seldom be taken seriously as he was one of the greatest of American humorists. This business man said he thought exertions in moderation was a good thing, but felt that a proper diet would do more to keep one physically fit than any form or amount of exercise could possibly do.

Getting Ice and Fire Over a Single Wire

Electricity does it—the modern magician. Fourteen million American homes get fire over the wire, in the form of electric light and heat.

When 1924 closed its record, 70,000 of those homes were also getting ice over the same wires that brought them fire in the forms of electric light and heat. During 1925, 80,000 more homes will enjoy ice by wire—electric refrigeration. Next year, plans provide for adding another 200,000 to 250,000. By 1929, it is estimated, 5,000,000 American homes will be "getting ice and fire over a single wire."

Wisconsin, always prompt to buy new electric service conveniences, will have her full share of that estimated 5,000,000 users of electric refrigeration.

This is just one of many steadily increasing demands made upon the resources of our power plants. Wisconsin Electric Power Company has had to continue enlarging the great Lakeside power plant ever since it was opened in 1920, and is still adding new generating equipment on a large scale.

To finance this growth we are selling the company's 6 1/2% cumulative preferred shares, at $100 each, payable all cash or $5 monthly per share. Buying either way, purchasers of these super-safe shares get 6 1/2% income from every dollar invested, from the day shares are bought.

Continued large future growth of the property, and continued regular earning of dividends are as certain as anything in business can be. We recommend these shares as a safe, permanent, income investment for the savings of Wisconsin men and women.

If it is not convenient for you to visit one of our offices, we shall be glad to send a salesman, at your own convenience, to tell you more about these shares. Mail orders are filled promptly by registered letter.

Cafe Owners Say Women Don't Eat

BY CYNTHIA GREY

Restauranters and hotel managers say women are ruining their business because they won't eat.

They come in beautifully gowned, they complain, and smile charmingly during the meal, but they won't eat much. And all the fancy cakes and pastries and other rich concoctions have to depend on the masculine element for consumption.

One of the smartest women in New York was giving a luncheon at the Ritz.

"I haven't taken the liberty to order for you," she told her guests, "because I know so many of you are on diets, so I shall leave that to you."

The waiter wore a smile when he started to take the orders, but it soon gave place to a look of woe when he saw what the women were ordering.

They wanted only a lamb chop and pineapple, or a vegetable and fruit salad—nothing more. They were all dieting, to keep their figures.

GOODBYE SICKNESS

Naturally, this isn't so good for the person who makes his living running a restaurant, but it is probably a great deal better for the women, and in time it will have its effect.

Overeating will not be responsible for so many ailments as it is today.

Still, you could talk about the evils of overeating until you were hoarse, but you would probably never cause women to give up a chocolate éclair or a cheese dream, if they wanted them.

But when you touch a woman's vanity, you have her attention. Most of us will take our chances on dye, epin or hardening of the arteries, but we won't take chances on weighing 200 pounds, if we can help it.

The women of this generation have definitely dissolved that famous old partnership of Fat and Forty.

BETTER FIGURES

Women throughout the country are cutting down on their food and as a result are healthier and have better figures.

Women may be making it a little hard for hotels, but they are making it easier for doctors and for themselves.

And they are effecting a much needed reform without realizing it.

CLEAN ICEBOX THOROUGHLY IN WINTER TIME

Refrigerators in winter are often used as a place for storing food rather than as a place for preserving it. In fact, after ice is never used in the refrigerator at all during cold weather.

When this is the case particular care should be taken to maintain inside cleanliness throughout the box. The ice and food chambers should be washed and scalded and the drains disinfected regularly.

All foodstuffs put into the ice box should be covered. There are various kinds of glass containers for this purpose. These fit on top of one another and utilize but little space in the refrigerator, and are made to use on the table as well.

Many ice boxes contain a large proportion of wood. Some have wooden racks in the ice chamber. Wood absorbs food flavors and odors readily and gives this absorption off with equal readiness.

Therefore food flavors do not remain true when stored in such a box. This is but one reason why every bit of food put away should be covered in some manner.

Jars should be used for liquid food, such as soups, soups and salad dressing. Meats and vegetables should always be wrapped in oil paper. Free circulation should be maintained when there is no ice in the refrigerator by leaving an upper and lower door unclipped.

When ice boxes do not drain properly be sure the floor on which they are placed is perfectly level.

MAKE-UP MUST BE NATURAL WARNS NOTED SCREEN BEAUTY

BY FLORENCE VIDOR
Motion Picture Actress.

For my screen work, I have made a study of make-up, and have been amazed at the effects it is possible to get by using the right shade of powder and rouge.

Whereas I am a firm believer in natural beauty, I believe that the synthetic kind is equally important, since we all resort to it. And since we will use rouge and powder, we should do it well.

I consider a foundation cream necessary, but it should be carefully removed or it will clog the skin. If rouge is applied, I believe paste rouge is best since it can be applied with the finger tips and patted in until it is almost imperceptible.

Always apply the rouge where your own color naturally comes. If you apply it high on the cheekbones and work it down instead of outward, it will apparently lengthen your face. Over this dust powder, which should also tone in with your skin. White powder is impossible, and so is deep pink. Cream, pale flesh, and the rachel shades are best.

If you have a large nose, be sure not to use a powder lighter than your skin unless you want to emphasize this feature.

When rouging your lips, follow the shape of your mouth and do not try to create an entirely new line.

If your eyelashes and brows are very light, they can be improved by the judicious use of a dark eyebrow pencil. If they are deep set, never make them up at all as make-up make them look more so. If your eyes are very prominent, use the least little bit of rouge around them.

When you have finished survey yourself carefully and erase all the traces of your handiwork. Unless you look perfectly natural you are not well made up.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO THE LITTLE MARQUISE, CARE THE SECRET DRAWER—CONTINUED

As it was, I entered the room a little ahead of Jack and stepped over to little Jack's bed. He lay with one sturdy arm—from which the loose sleeve of his pajamas had slipped—over his head.

I caught my breath, for his position was so exactly like Jack when he is asleep.

"He is even more like you when he is asleep than when he is awake," I murmured.

"God grant he grows up very different from me," answered Jack fervently.

"Oh, I don't know, my friends you have really come, to give your boy. My father evidently thought you were the best business man he knew and I heard you described the other day as a human dynamo, run by personality plus."

John looked up from the bed over which we were bending.

"Do friends like me as sweetly as you, my dear Leslie?" he asked with the first smile I had seen on his face that evening.

"Why, of course, Jack, one of the first bonds of friendship, the one perhaps which binds your friend to you closest, is the mutual admiration which must exist between you."

"Then," said Jack emphatically, "you and I should be pretty good friends, for you have just intimated that I have some admirable qualities and I admire you more than any other woman I have ever known."

"So you think little Jack looks like me," my husband said, quickly changing the subject.

I knew he felt he had made a mistake in even mentioning it at this time that he had ever admired another woman. This, of course, was very silly, for he had just intimated that I had some admirable qualities and I admire you more than any other woman I have ever known.

Adventures Of The Twins

THE INVISIBLE PIXIES

"Did you ever hear the story of the Invisible Pixies?" asked Mi O' Mi, the Story Teller Man.

"No we didn't," cried the Twins excitedly. "Will you tell it to us?"

"Let me see," said Mi O' Mi thoughtfully. "I think I know how it goes. Oh, yes! I remember:

"Once upon a time there were some pixies who were extra bad and extra mischievous and extra everything."

"They lived in a large cave right outside the village, and the pranks they played kept the poor villagers in hot water most of the time. No real hot water, but just—well, just hot water—trouble, you know."

"Then what?" asked Nick.

"Oh, ho!" laughed Mi O' Mi. "here's someone who wants to hear a story back foremost. I'm hurrying as fast as I can."

This time he went on and no one interrupted him again.

"Well, as I said before, no one knew who was going to get into trouble next. One night a baby's bank was robbed right on the marketplace. Another night the green lace curtain in his cellar, another night someone stole the feathers right out of Granny Nip Nap's pillow while she slept. And so on.

"But the worst one of all was the butcher. The pixies loved bologna better than anything in the world and about every other night they walked off with a whole ring of it. And sausage! My goodness! The sausage they stole!

"Well, there was a young man in the village named Toby, who decided to turn policeman and find out who was stealing all their things. He rather suspected the pixies in Pixie Cave as it was called, although nobody had ever actually seen them.

And so late one night he crept out of the village and he came to the cave and hid inside.

It was very dark as the only lights that pixies used are glow worms and fireflies. And even these had their lamps turned down.

"But after a while he could see very well when his eyes became accustomed to the gloom.

"At exactly midnight he heard a loud shouting and knew that the pixies were coming. He could hear them crowding into the cave, but not a sign of them could he see. Nothing but a large ring of bologna that looked as though it was hopping along on the ground by itself.

"Suddenly Toby heard a tiny voice say, 'We'll have to go to the market and get another jar of invisible oil tomorrow. This jar is almost gone. If we have no invisible oil to rub ourselves with, we can't go out."

"That's going some—but skinny men, women and children just can't help putting on good, healthy flesh when they take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

burglarizing at night any more, and then no more parties."

"The next thing Toby noticed was a tiny man who had sprung suddenly into view. And then another and another until suddenly the cave was filled with hundreds of pixies."

"And what do you think, my dears," said Mi O' Mi, "every place was rubbing himself for dear life with some stuff out of another big jar marked 'Visible Oil'."

"Toby shook his head wisely. 'Ah ha!' said he. 'They rub themselves with invisible oil so no one can see them. Then when they come back they rub themselves with visible oil again.'"

"Just then the same pixie who had spoken before said loudly, 'Why this oil is about done, too! We'll have to get two kinds of oil from the wizard tomorrow. Sharp Ears, get up and go at dawn.'"

"Toby laughed to himself. 'I know something,' said he."

CHEESE USED IN VEGETABLES AND PASTRIES

With cheese in such prominence in the dietary of the individual, the housewife will be anxious to acquaint herself with some of the outstanding points in relation to cooking and digestion of this most important product.

When cheese is first purchased, a few minutes should be taken to properly care for it. Wrap it either in oiled paper or in a wet tea towel and store it so, as to avoid any possible contamination from strong flavors or odors.

Being a ready-to-eat product, cheese in cookery is heated merely to melt it and incorporate it with the rest of the mixture. This operation does not require high heat. And, too, being high in protein content, cheese must be cooked at a low temperature in order to attain a resulting product that will be easily digested. Therefore, in most made cheese dishes, the double boiler is employed. By this method of radiation, a cheese dish may be prepared without direct contact of high heat. If necessity demands a direct flame, the flame should be low and the time of cooking should be short.

American cheese serves many purposes. The effect of creamed cheese may be obtained by adding grated cheese to a small amount of cream. Cheese may be used in desserts. Its flavor is well liked in pastries and in salads it is unsurpassed. Caution must be exercised in the adding of cheese to acid material. It is advisable in made dishes where cheese and milk are to be mixed with acid, as acetic in vinegar, to dilute the vinegar with water and then mix it with the flour which is generally used as a thickening agent in cheese dishes.

The FLAPPER WIFE

By Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

Gloria lay back in the long leather chair before the mirror and closed her eyes.

She winced as Marie wrapped her face in steaming towels, lathered it with a sweet-smelling cream and began to smack it smartly with the little ivory paddles.

"I hope you're not ruining my looks. I have a heavy date at 2 o'clock," she said. She would hate to have Stanley Wayburn see her with her face red as a lobster from Marie's strenuous treatment!

"I'm not," Marie answered placidly. "You'll look like a million dollars when I finish with you. I'm against most beauty treatments, but this is really good for the skin."

"I used to say," she went on, "that there was nothing like good. Cold water for the complexion. And the was all right back in the old days when there wasn't so much smoke and dirt in the world. But these days you've got to get right down into pores with a good cream to get the grime out of them."

Gloria didn't answer. She had gone to sleep—utterly exhausted. She did not waken while Marie powdered and rouged her face and brushed mascara along her brows and lashes.

"Please take all that stuff off my eyes-lashes," she said, when Marie finally awakened her by shaking her briskly. "It makes me look like a clown."

"It does not," it makes you look like a great big wax doll," Marie said. "To my way of thinking you're a lot better looking with your eyes touched up a bit."

"Don't make the mistake of thinking you're one of the women who don't need make-up. Mrs. Gregory. Only one woman in a thousand is so pretty that she doesn't need it!"

Gloria stared at her crestfallen. Then she looked into the mirror. She had always thought that she was the one woman in a thousand who was so beautiful that she didn't need more than the lightest touch of rouge and powder to make her as ravishing as Helen of Troy!

Could it be that she was losing her looks? She studied her face in the brilliantly-lighted mirror.

No, she wasn't as pretty as she had been. There was a hard look in her eyes, and fat was certainly not becoming to her.

What had happened to her during these few months of marriage to make her look this way?

Gloria wondered if all the cocktails and the wild parties had had any thing to do with it? Or her worry over Stanley Wayburn? . . . Well, he'd be gone soon, at any rate.

Gloria, at that moment, wished that he had gone already. And yet, her heart ached like an early-rising lark as she went out into the street to meet him.

"What have done to your face?" were Stan's first words of greeting as she drove up beside him.

"Oh, I didn't do it. It was done to me," Gloria laughed, rubbing a finger across her darkened eyebrow.

"Marie, the beauty specialist, says I'm not pretty enough to suit her. So she fixed me up. How do you like me this way?"

"I don't," Wayburn answered bluntly. "I don't know where all you girls get this idea that we then like to see you all colored up like a barber pole."

"Men hate cheeks of chalk," Gloria quoted gibber. "They hate cheeks of sun proof paint, too," Wayburn said sturdily.

"Oh, I know that. There's no pleasing you men!" Gloria answered. "If we're pale you want us rosy. And if we're rosy, you want us to be pale! Dick wants a home-making wife, so he marries me . . . and I'm a gaffy!"

frankness. "This New York environment looks pretty good to me. At least, Sonya Chotek says it is a good thing."

"Sonya Chotek," Gloria exclaimed. "Do you mean to say she found this job for you?"

Jealously swept over her like a wave of heat from a furnace. Wayburn nodded.

"She suggested to the manager of the show . . . Mangold, his name is . . . that I'd do for the leading man," he said easily. "So I'm going on for the try-out. Of course, I may be a blooming failure. You never can tell."

Gloria was silent. She would never have given Stan that $200 if she had known he was going down to New York to Sonya Chotek with it!

They were out in the open country now. The day was perfect. Here and there the white sail of a cloud floated across the dark, blue sky.

There were dandelions in the tangle of wild grass that edged the red brick pavement. And in the building branches of the trees robins were singing that song of theirs that is as sweet and cold and gay as spring itself.

Gloria stopped her car at the edge of the road. "What's the matter now?" Wayburn asked.

"Nothing," Gloria answered. "Only if you don't like my face this way I'm going to change it."

She took out a small handkerchief and began to rub the mascara from her eyes and the rouge from her cheeks.

Wayburn lifted the shadowy brim of her hat at one side and looked at her. He saw that she was crying.

"Well, what's the matter with you?" he asked.

DUSKY KING IS INDUCED TO HONOR ST. PATRICK

By Associated Press
Honolulu—Believing that March 17 was the best day in the year for birth-day celebrations, no matter in whose honor, a young Irishman, nearly 100 years ago, drifted to the Hawaiian island and upset the records of local history. Only recently was the error discovered by the Daughters and Sons of Hawaiian Warriors, who have set the matter straight.

The wandering Irishman became the boon companion of the king of Hawaii, Kamehameha III, and learned to his distress that the king was in the habit of celebrating his birthday on the day he was born, August 11. He explained to the king why this should not be, and advanced colorful arguments for a change to March 17. The friendly king consented, and kept up the practice as long as he lived.

Preparing a set of tableaux for presentation next June, to honor King Kamehameha, the Sons and Daughters, founding conflicting records, some set forth he was born August 11 and others March 17. Archives finally fixed the date as in August, and then some old timers came forward with the story of the roving admirer of St. Patrick.

SUNDAY'S GAMES
APPLETON 1, PLYMOUTH 0 (12 innings)
Oshkosh 8, Chilton 2.
Fondy 12, Campbellport 0.

Playing the best brand of ball displayed all season behind phenomenal hurling by Dats Crowe, the Appleton ball club of the Eastern Wisconsin ball league, beat the loop-leading Plymouth crew at the Cheese city Sunday in the twelfth inning by a 1-0 score. The locals had to play real ball as Elliot also hurled a great game and was aided by fine support. Crowe allowed 3 scattered blows and Elliot let Appleton down with 5, but two doubles in a row in the final frame spelled victory for the Papermakers. Lightning swift double play behind each hurler saved the game twice during the day.

Boots Lamers' saved Crowe several bad innings by dashing from his position at shortstop over to the outfield behind second to share hard-hit grounders. His work in the field was as good as any seen on an E. W. loop field this year.

Appleton hits were registered by Lamers, Klundt, Pocaan, H. Tarnow and Baetz, while Wilke, Spartz and DeLong clouted safe ones for Plymouth. Not a Plymouth man reached third base in the entire fray. H. Tarnow made an error when a hard-hit ball bounded into a hollow in the outfield and one Cheesemaker also erred. Fans at the game were unanimous in declaring it the best they had seen in years. Elliot and Crowe each passed one batter in the 12th inning and Dats had 11 strikeouts to 14 for his Plymouth rival. Pocaan and Gosha pulled a snappy double play for Appleton. Pocaan throwing out a man at first and Gosha returning the ball to third in time to get a runner who attempted to gain the look-in corner on the play. Plymouth's double play resulted from work by Wangeman at third, DeLong at second and Spartz at the initial corner. Elliot hit H. Tarnow with the ball in the final frame.

Gosha went out short to first and then Lamers slammed a hot one into left for two sacks. Klundt popped to the pitcher and with two down, Squaw Pocaan hit one to the carnival tents. The blow was good for a homer and Squaw was rounding third as the ball stopped rolling, but the ground rules restricted it to a double. Lamers scored the only run of the game and then H. Tarnow fanned. After Wilke had gone out short to first in the last half, Crowe put on steam and fanned Peebles and Spartz in a row. Gosha played a great game at first for the Papermakers, taking 16 putouts and an assist without a blow.

GOLF As Champions Play It

Should the putter be light or heavy in weight?

BY BOB CRICKSHANK
One of America's greatest players I prefer a putter of about 15 ounces. But no matter what the weight of it, see that the weight of the head is easily felt. A putter, for instance, that becomes or is too light, tends towards a jump or jerky putting stroke. It also makes one hit too hard and gives a chance for some unnecessary movement. In other words, a fairly heavy headed or easily felt head tends towards a smooth swing and good form, even striking of the ball. It also assists in keeping the head and body rigidly still, the most essential thing in putting.

RIVERVIEW GOLF TEAM BEATS BAY SQUAD, 34 TO 21

Local Men Break Rival's Perfect At-home Record as Ken Dickinson Loses to Kerwin

Playing excellent golf Saturday, members of the Riverview Country club of Appleton, broke a record of forty standing when they beat the Fox River Country club players of Green Bay, on the home links. The Bay players had long made it their boast that no rival crew was able to beat them at the Bay. The final score of the meet was 34-21 for the Appleton team.

The meet was featured by the playing of W. F. Kerwin, of the Bay team, who took all three points in his match with Ken Dickinson, new-ly-crowned state amateur champion. Several other Appleton stars met with surprises but the majority of the local golfers came through with big victories. H. L. Davis captained the Appleton team.

ENGLISH STAR IN NET FINALS

Kathleen McKane Giving Helen Wills Strong Battle for Title

New York—(AP)—The annual tournament for the women's national tennis championship had reached the final round Monday with Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Calif., Olympic champion and twice national title holder, defending her crown against Miss Kathleen McKane, of England, beginning at 3:15 in the afternoon.

Miss McKane is the first representative of a foreign country to reach the final round. She developed her game by practicing on top of a London building where a cage was erected by her employer and by such play on the courts as permitted by her duties as cashier in a tea room.

While the challenger has shown the greater variety of stroke and agility, Miss Wills is by far the stronger with her whirlwind drives. Miss McKane is excellent at the net.

The doubles finals, which start at 5 o'clock, promise to furnish another great struggle with Miss Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne pitted against Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy on an all-California card.

COMPETITION KEEN IN WOMENS GOLF TOURNEY

St. Paul, Minn.—A host of star women golfers, including four former champions, and a number of runners-up in the previous events, promised unusually keen competition for high honors as the National Women's Western golf tournament got under way at the White Bear Yacht club Monday. Hard and fast, fair ways greeted the first of the 106 entrants.

Of the 106 entrants, 100 were in the first round, 20 who are to enter match play for the 1925 title.

Nearly fifty Chicago players were among the list of contestants. Kansas City, Detroit, Omaha, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., were among other cities represented.

Pretournament "dope" put Mrs. Joseph Horn, Chicago, formerly Miriam Burns, who won the championship two years ago, in the favorite class to capture the honors. In practice rounds over the White Bear course last week, she played brilliant golf including a card of 77, two under women's par for White Bear.

Other former champions seeking to repeat in 1925 include Mrs. David Gault of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Elaine Roenicht Reinhardt, of Dallas, Texas; and Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago.

Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, the champion, will not defend her laurels won last year from Mrs. Horn. Match play will start Tuesday and continue until Saturday when the finals are scheduled. All matches will be eighteen holes, except the finals which will be thirty.

Newport, R. I.—Francis Outmet, with scores of 285 wins annual golf match on Ocean links.

Amsterdam—Grassie of France wins 100 kilometer cycling race.

FISTIC BEAU BRUMMEL

GEORGES CARPENTIER AND DAUGHTER, JACQUELINE

Here we have the "Beau Brummel of Fisticana" with his smiling little daughter, Jacqueline. The one-time boxing idol of France appears to have quite an admirer in the young miss who calls him "daddy". Rather handsome at that, isn't he girls?

Michigan Has Promising Material For 1925 Squad

Ann Arbor, Mich.—With one of the hardest grid schedules ever slated for the Wolverines in prospect for fall 58 candidates for the University of Michigan football squad have received invitations to report here Sept. 15 for early practice. Included in the invitation list are 13 letter men and 5 second-string men from last year's squad.

Among the veterans are Captain Bob Brown, Ypsilanti, Mich., 180-pound center with two years experience; R. G. Babcock, Royal Oak, Mich., 155-pound tackle with 2 years prior experience on the Varsity; Sid Dewey, Monroe, Mich., 185-pound guard with a year's experience; Victor Domhoff, Toledo, O., 160-pound quarterback who won his first M last fall; Tom Edwards, Ann Arbor, 183-pound tackle who also won his first letter last fall; William Flora, Muskegon, Mich., 155-pound end with a year's experience; Ben Friedman, Cleveland, O., the forward-passing find of last year; Bruce Gregory, Ann Arbor, a junior, 180-pound back; Charles Grube, Saginaw, Mich., 170-pound end with two years' previous experience; H. Hawkins, Saginaw, Mich., guard with two years' prior experience now weighing 200 pounds; William Herrstein, Chillicothe, O., 162-pound back with two letters to his credit; Fred Parker, Hastings, Mich., 167-pound back who won his M in 1923; and Carl Stammen, Toledo, O., 172-pound fullback with a year's experience.

The Wolverine line looks mighty good, but the backfield is as yet an unknown quantity. Ben Friedman is likely to be shifted to quarter to replace Rockwell who graduated in June. Lelloy Heston, nephew of the great Willie Heston, all-time All-American back, will make a strong bid for another backfield position. Fred Fuller, a newcomer to the squad from Jackson, Mich., and another new Jim Miller, of Adrian, Mich., are also being seriously considered for the backfield. Members of the freshman squad last fall who are graduating to the Varsity include Ed Lange, Chicago, Ill., 160-pound back; D. O. Rankin, Shelby, Mich., 175-pound back; Harry Staggs, Terre Haute, Ind., 163-pound back, William Puckalwartz, Chicago, Ill., who won his first M in baseball last spring; Stanley Skidmore, Battle Creek, Mich., 164-pound quarterback; Leo Hoffman, Allegan, Mich., 150-pound quarterback.

Bo Molenda, Detroit, Mich., 163-pound fullback is also being seriously considered, with Stammen, Wayne, Mich., and Clemens, Mich., William Berry, Corning, N. Y., and H. Lounsbury of Chicago, Ill., as rival contenders for the job.

Aside from Heston and such veterans as Herrstein, Gregory and Froemke, other promising backs include John Sponseller, Canton, O.; Martin Garber, Enid, Okla.; Louis Gilbert, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Earl Kelley of Cadillac, Mich.

Michigan's line may not undergo many changes. Grube and Flora ends last year, Edwards and Babcock, veteran tackles, Hawkins, guard and a newcomer to replace Harold Steele as a new center. Captain Brown at center will compose the line for the opening game, it is thought.

MACKS AND BUCKS HOLD EVEN PACE

The Athletics and Washington continued their neck-and-neck race for the American League gonfalon during the past week, each winning five games and losing two. In the National the Giants gained a bit on both the Pirates and Reds, grabbing five out of eight frays. Pittsburgh broke even in six tilts, while Cincinnati managed to win but two in seven.

BUCS HAVE MACS WALKING PLANK IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

Leading Contenders Split
Double Header to Give Pirates Toe-hold in Race

New York—The Pirates have all but shoved the Giants off the plank. McGraw and his crew have only a measure toe-hold now to prevent Pittsburgh capturing the National League pennant.

The best New York could do Sunday was to divide a double header with the Pirates winning the opener 7 to 4, and taking a setback in the night-cap, 3 to 2. Rawlings, a Giant castoff, drove in the winning run in the second game.

The Buccaneers continue with their five game lead on the top rung and have the present series already in the bag with three victories. The final game is Monday.

Washington kept its one-game margin over the Athletics in the American League race by taking the measure of the Bengals, 6 to 4, while Philadelphia was blanking the White Sox 3 to 0.

Sam Gray of the Macks held the Sox to seven hits and Al Simmons hung up his 22nd homer of the year. Bing Miller also slammed for the circuit.

Chicago braced after taking a 6-0 shutout from Dazzy Vance in the first game of a twin bill and won the second from Brooklyn, 9 to 7. Vance limited the Cubs to two scratch hits and fanned nine batters. The Cubs did not play and the even break for the Robins kept the one point in arrears of the Hornsby tribe.

Bennett's triple with two on the sacks in the fourth inning put the game on ice for the Browns, who turned out a 5 to 2 victory over the Red Sox. Babe Ruth whacked his 14th home run of the season in the sixth inning of the game with the Indians, but he Yankees lost their third in a row to Cleveland 7 to 6.

HORNSBY HAS CHANCE FOR HOME RUN MARK

St. Louis—The present home run record for the National League is 42, made by Rogers Hornsby of the Cards back in 1922.

But at the rate this same Rogers is traveling this season it wouldn't be surprising to see a new mark hung up for the circuit.

With some 50 games yet to be played, Hornsby has 31 four-sackers to his credit. He needs only a dozen more to smash the existing figure. And with the feat within his reach he's quite apt to go out and put it across.

OSHKOSH NORMAL MEETS LA CROSSE ON OCT. 24

La Crosse—Three home games and four out-of-town football games comprise the tentative 1925 gridiron schedule of La Crosse normal school here. Four of the games are with normal conference teams, and one of these, the game with Oshkosh normal school here on Oct. 24 has been designated as the homecoming game.

The schedule:
Oct. 10—Stout institute at La Crosse normal; Oct. 17—La Crosse at Milwaukee; Oct. 24—Oshkosh normal at La Crosse (Homecoming); Oct. 31—La Crosse at Plattville normal; Nov. 6—La Crosse at Columbia college, Dubuque, Ia.; Nov. 14—La Crosse at Luther college, Decorah, Ia.; Nov. 21—De Paul university, Chicago, at La Crosse.

PHILLIES GET GOOD PROSPECT IN LEACH

The Phillies seem to have picked up a good prospect in Leach, young outfielder. He's been hitting the ball at a lively rate and covering the pastures nicely. The other day he slugged out, two home runs against Boston, each time with a runner on the bases.

BILL SHERDEL HAVING BIG YEAR FOR CARDS

Bill Sherdel of the Cards is having a good season on the hilltop. The other day he turned in his tenth victory, holding the Cubs to five scattered crashes. He's one of the most dependable gunners on the Hornsby staff.

Ivory is obtained from the tusks of the walrus, hippopotamus and few other beasts, as well as from the elephant.

YOUNG LA BARBA WILL STICK TO RING GAME

Los Angeles, Calif.—(AP)—Nineteen year-old Fidel LaBarba, who defeated Frank Genaro of New York in a ten round bout here last Saturday plans to remain a boxer only long enough to finance his education at Stanford University which he plans to enter in September, 1926, with a view of fitting himself for a medical career. Genaro was twice victor over the late Pancho Villa. Articles signed before Saturday's bout stated that the fight was for the flyweight championship of the world. LaBarba's victory accordingly makes him a desired acquisition among promoters and dozens of offers were received by his manager.

UNIVERSITY HIT BY REFUSAL TO ACCEPT GIFTS

Scientists Charge University of Wisconsin Regents Are Injuring School

New York.—That the University of Wisconsin will lose its famed position of eminence in science to the state and to society generally, by adoption of the policy of rejecting gifts from educational endowments, as voted by the Wisconsin Regents, is apparent from a survey of the opinion of scientists, educators and engineers, which was submitted to Wisconsin alumni officials by the New York association of Badger alumni. The report is signed by K. M. Mann, president and J. S. Thompson, secretary.

Eastern alumni were aroused by the press dispatches which reported that on the eve of President Birge's retirement after 30 years of service to the University and in the face of his assertion that adoption would mean shutting the University off from higher education had been rejected by a vote of 9 to 6.

They were spurred to action by the extraordinary editorial treatment of the subject in New York newspapers, and in particular by the Times' 500-word editorial, in which it was pointed out that the Regents had gone back on the famous Wisconsin tradition of encouraging "fearless and continual sifting and winnowing by which alone the truth may be found."

QUOTE EXPERTS
Through their personal contact with representatives of leading scientific, educational and engineering societies which are encouraging research in college and universities having in some instances millions of dollars in endowments for the betterment of mankind, the alumni heard with chagrin and keen disappointment of the sudden eclipse of the reputation of their school. They secured permission to quote a few of the individuals as follows:

"It is difficult to see how the University of Wisconsin expects to keep abreast of scientific research if it isolates itself wholly from cooperation with incorporated endowments," said H. C. Parmelee, editor of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, and incidentally chairman of the Committee of Chemical Education of American Institute of Chemical Engineering. "The state university of today is almost obligated to expend state funds, for the general education and culture of the sons and daughters of taxpayers. Comparatively little is left for special research and investigations which frequently can be carried on only through cooperation with endowed foundations. To raise a barrier against such cooperation is to decline an effective modern means of educational progress." Wilford L. King, prominent Wisconsin alumnus and secretary-treasurer, National Bureau of Economic Research said, "I approve heartily of the view of the Regents that the University of Wisconsin should be kept free from the control of any particular group or faction. The University should always reflect the will of the people of the State as a whole." "After having had considerable experience, however, with the Foundations which are spending money for scientific research, I must say that I have seen no evidence of their attempting in any way to influence the results of such research, and under such circumstances, it appears that the fear that the acceptance of gifts from such organizations will lessen the freedom of action of the University is probably based upon insufficient ground. Presumably, everyone will agree that it is desirable for the University to have additional funds for research. If these can be obtained without in any way having an undesirable influence upon the spirit of the institution."

RESEARCH RETARDED
Alfred D. Flinn, director of The Engineering Foundation, which is the joint research instrumentality of the great national engineering societies, said, "In defense of the service of endowed foundations to the community, I would say that without aid from endowed foundations search for truth and furtherance of the good of mankind would be greatly retarded. General refusal of gifts from endowed foundations would paralyze great agencies for human advancement. Much good has resulted from fair and intelligent giving by endowed foundations. Accept useful gifts without compromising conditions, regardless of the source."

George B. Peckham, dean of the College of Engineering, Columbia University, recently elected president of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education said: "The recent action of the authorities of the University of Wisconsin in refusing to accept no gifts for specified research from large endowed corporations is of course not taken without some reason. The danger which state universities may particularly fear is interference with the proper spirit and activities of the university by political or semi-political influences. Any evidence of danger of dominance by any corporation would probably quickly bring its own corrective, especially in a state university. The encouragement of the flow of funds from private and corporate sources to our great state universities for the support of scholarship and research may well be a healthy corrective of any political instability of a purely state supported institution."

The New York Times' editorial written presumably by Dr. John H. Finley, distinguished educator and writer, reviewed the Wisconsin history regarding the 1894 incidents as

PLENTY OF EXCITEMENT IN ARTILLERY CORPS

If you like horses and action, and if you want to see a good part of the world and at the same time learn a useful trade or occupation, join a live field artillery organization. This is the advice of recruiting officers. Anyone interested in enlisting in the artillery is asked to communicate with the postmaster.

Enlistment in the Field Artillery will benefit men immensely, according to the recruiting officers. Trades such as telephony, radio, saddlery, horse-shoeing and cooking are a few of the most interesting and desirable offered. Men enlisting may have the choice of two stations, Fort Sheridan, Ill., and Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Exceptional opportunities exist at Fort Sheridan for sports and athletics. Boxing, baseball and basketball are always encouraged.

Follows: "Sifting and winnowing has been a Wisconsin tradition strengthened during the administration of that granitic geologist, Dr. Van Hise and of that humanistic scientist, Dr. E. A. Birge. Nothing in Heaven or Earth could swerve these men and the scholarship in defeating which they represented from trying to find the truth of from telling it if they found it." It concluded: "Is fundamental democracy, so precious to the widely known Regent of 'Friendship Village,' Zona Gale, really imperiled when individuals are ready to give in order to help the community to add to its comfort and improve its health, or in other way to make themselves serve the good of a whole commonwealth?"

"The cooperation of Foundations which have made it possible for hundreds of teachers to live comfortable after the years of their work, or have given for the prevention of disease, the stamping out of a plague or the extermination of a pest, to have endowed laboratories for inquiry into the heavens, the earth or the waters under the earth, and established libraries for study, ought to be sought instead of scorned by a democracy. Through their aid much can be done in the way of investigation and experiment that a democracy is hesitant about doing out of its own treasury, or hasn't the means to do. What the Foundations can give is often the very machinery for sifting and winnowing the truth. To refuse their aid is not so much to discredit the Foundations as to show a want of faith in the University's own teachers."

The World said: "No educational institution in this country is less open to suspicion than the University of Wisconsin. The Rockefeller Foundation have ever carried any such obligation it has not appeared in any record. xxx with a progressive, independent, courageous thinker like Glenn Frank at its head, the University of Wisconsin could have accepted xxx and remained as Caesar's wife ought to have been, above suspicion."

LEGION HONORS

KELLER FOR HIS WORK AS LEADER

Retiring Commander Given
Ovation and Watch Charm
at Convention

L' Hugo Keller, commander of the Wisconsin department of the American Legion for the term just ended, was given a tremendous ovation when he relinquished his seat to his successor, H. L. Plummer, at the closing session of the state convention in Stevens Point Saturday afternoon. The first act of the new commander was to present Mr. Keller with a gold watch charm as an expression of appreciation from the state department and the executive committee for the untiring service which he had given during the year. The watch charm is an additional memento to the past commander's pin which is given to all former state commanders.

Delegates rose to their feet as Plummer made the presentation and cheered the retiring commander for several minutes. It was with considerable difficulty that order was restored and Keller responded with a brief talk in which he said that while he was retiring from active connection with the state department he would always be ready to do any work that is assigned to him.

KELLER ILL
Keller was ill most of the time he was in Stevens Point and left his bed, against orders of his doctor, to attend the final session. Immediately after convention he left for Big Carr lake, near the American legion camp, where he will spend his vacation. Keller was elected one of the delegates to represent the Ninth district of the legion at the national convention in Omaha next month. Other Ninth district delegates are H. V. Higley, Marinette and O. Classon, Oconto. Alternates are J. C. Welterman, Sturgeon Bay; Fred Smith, DePere; Angus McIntyre, Little Chute.

Postal Vacations
M. S. Peckenboom, and John Letter, Appleton postoffice clerks, have returned to their duties at the post office after 15 day vacations. Carl Elias, and Arthur Kahler, also clerks at the Appleton postoffice, started on their annual vacations Monday. H. J. Franck, assistant postmaster, who

In an effort to cure deafness with which he had been afflicted for many years, Edwin A. Weisenbach, 408 N. Durkeest, went up 10,000 feet in an airplane at the airplane derby at Chilton Sunday. The plane went through amazing contractions high up in the air, turning the loop the loop, spinning on its tail and going through other thrilling maneuvers. ## LEEDS WILL TRY TO RUN CIVIC THEATRE

Leeds, Eng.—A theater devoted to the "production of intelligent drama" is to be run here and no charges of admission will be made. It is to be called the Leeds Civic Theater, and many leading citizens have promised their support. The expenses will be met, it is hoped, by collections to be taken at each performance. It is the contention of the promoters that performances of "little theaters" on a subscription basis, or with necessarily restricted audiences, are in danger of becoming unrepresentative in character. Five productions will be given at the Civic Theater during the winter months and it is hoped to get 5,000 people to attend each of them.
